

"We asked the grandparents to take our kids for the weekend and zoomed in. It was like the presenters were right at our kitchen table... as we listened to their stories, we could see all the emotion in their eyes. They taught us so much, what a powerful weekend!"

"The weekend was paced just right for us. Each session took us into a new topic to explore. When it was all over, we both felt closer; and we had some new tools in our toolbox. It took our relationship to a new level."

'The best thing you can do for your family is to love your spouse.' I've heard this quote before but we actually saw it in action after our weekend. We were just a little more patient and spoke to each other just a little kinder. The atmosphere was different around our home and the children even noticed.
