Only one month out of high school, Kevin Stobo won the award as Edmonton's Best New Comic and he has been touring and performing stand-up comedy ever since. Kevin had the opportunity to perform at the prestigious "Just For Laughs" gala at the world famous Montreal comedy festival, which also aired nationwide on CBC television. His other comedy credits included being on the Comedy Networks "Best of Just For Laughs" and "The Comedy Stampede". As well as CBC radios "Madly Off in All Directions", The "Edmonton Comedy Festival" and opening for Bob Saget and acclaimed musician Jeff Beck. you may recognize Kevin from his hosting duties on Global TV's "Inside Entertainment", Sun Networks "The DVD Show", TV Tropolis "Where are They Now" and Shaw TV's "Movie Reviews with Kevin Stobo". Kevin Stobo was a finalist in the 2002 Just For Laughs "HOMEGROWN COMPETITION" and has appeared on the Just For Laughs television show. Kevin has also appeared in several national television commercials including Subway and Telus. He was a recurring character on the television series "Honey I Shrunk The Kids". Kevin is a natural at his craft. He has been touring and performing stand-up comedy ever since high school.

Kevin's brand of friendly and relatable comedy is sure to entertain. "I'm more of an everyday lifestyle comedian. I talk about my marriage and my kids – I'm divorced and have teenage daughters. I think it's relatable to other people's lives. I try to find the funny in everyday stuff that other people can relate to."
